Os novos desafios para a psicanálise

Salle des fêtes de l'annexe de la Mairie du XIV
12 rue Pierre Castagnou, 75014 Paris

A century after its birth, psychoanalysis faces many challenges. If his practice arouses so much expectation, if its results are significant, if enthusiasm for this profession continues to grow, his thinking is in crisis. This crisis is inevitable and regular, which is why each analyst is “forced to reinvent psychoanalysis”. This reinvention is necessitated by the criticisms it receives, and which are understood, as much as by the incomprehension of its advances. This misunderstanding is due both to the specific difficulties of its transmission and to contemporary cultural upheavals – the digital revolution as well as the simultaneous growth of a new scientism and a return of religion – but also geopolitical – with the return of violent until then distant and exercised far from the muffled tranquility of the Western world: there were many disturbances in the distance but the ordinary quickly regained its rights, especially as the conviction that we were on the road to progress took over us. However, today we are experiencing a sudden change in the world which leads us to re-examine what new issues it produces.

Psychoanalysts from many places, from many countries will come, to Paris and by videoconference, from December 12 to 15, 2024, to exchange and transmit the state of their work.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 12TH

12 -9:30 AM

OPENING OF THE CONGRESS

Carine Petit, Mayor of the 14th arrondissement of Paris

Dominique Tourres-Landman, President of Espace analytique (France)

And speeches by members of the Congress Organising Committee: Danielle Carassik, Gisèle Chaboudez, Luiz Paulo Martins, Alain Vanier, Catherine Vanier.

2:00 PM

SUICIDE, SELF-MURDER, MURDER OF THE OTHER

Suicide is an act that contains many enigmas when it comes to clinical interpretation. Why is it that some people, despite numerous attempts, never take the plunge, while others have no hesitation in carrying out their own murder? The subject of suicide (the use of which is a constant that varies little over time) is still a taboo.

Discussant: Michel Durel.

- Ahmed Bouhlal: Suicide: an idea, an image, a body
- Orsola Barberis: Oedipus: blindness and suicide
- Salomé Vion: Anatomy of a suicide
- Hélène Godefroy: The sadistic act of the suicide

THE EMPIRE OF CONTROL

Control-submission-servitude is a tripod without borders that has spanned the ages, afflicting the subject of the social as well as the subject of the unconscious. These subjects are exiled from their right to speak under the sway of a power that is supposed to know and a knowledge that is supposed to be powerful. This 'machine for influencing', under the guise of Bemächtigungstrieb - 'drive to influence' - is in fact itself the slave of the death drive. Making the Encore consonant with the En-pire. Faced with these chronic attempts at de-subjectification, which have become a war machine, what analytical act is the psychoanalyst called upon to perform?

Coordination: Claire Gillie, Hélène Godefroy, Maria Izabel Oliveira Szpacenkopf

- Paul-Laurent Assoun: The circuit of the drive and the in-between two subjects: a grip's unconscious
- Claire Gillie: The empire of sectarian transference; the sway of an illusion
- Alain Abelhauser: « The Other has changed ». « Really? »
- Maria Izabel Oliveira Szpacenkopf: The will to control in society and in the psychoanalytic clinic

RACIALITY AND COLONIALISM: QUESTIONS FOR PSYCHOANALYSIS (1)

This round-table discussion problematizes the silence of psychoanalytic discourse on the differential impact of race on subjectivities. We seek to examine the historical-political roots - rooted in the psychoanalytic movement - that have underpinned the unwillingness to acknowledge skin color and its consequences. In the face of current phenomena of violence, segregation and xenophobia, it is essential to take up the question of racism as a category that concerns psychoanalysis in its clinical and theoretical fields. Finally, we seek to determine the extent to which the maintenance of this silence is rooted in the theoretical-conceptual homogenization of psychoanalytic discourse originating on European soil.

Coordinator: Luciano Dias; Moderator: Luiz Paulo Martins

- Isildinha Baptista Nogueira: A psicanálise é a cultura da discriminação: o corpo negro enquanto categoria imaginária e simbólica
- Bruno Siniscalchi, Luciano Dias, Natasha Mello Helsinger: The primal scene and the relationship mold: pushing back the limits of myth
- Thamy Ayouch: Race, subalternisation and psychoanalysis: the political and the psychic

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 13th

9:30 AM

TREATMENT MODALITIES FOR CONTEMPORARY SYMPTOMS, BABIES, CHILDREN, AND ADOLESCENTS FROM HERE AND ELSEWHERE (1): CHILDREN

Some leave aside the ethics of speaking and listening and give up taking into account the singularity of the subjects concerned. How can we convey the specificity of our clinical practice and our theoretical references? Faced with the symptoms engendered by our modernity, is it not a question for us and for our colleagues abroad of reinventing the modes of psychoanalytic transmission and training?

Speakers and session chairs: Frédéric de Rivoyre, Catherine Saladin, and Catherine Vanier

- Catherine Vanier: Introduction
- Raja Makki: Training for child psychoanalysts in Lebanon: didactic deficit or cultural pressure?
- Brigitte Battalier: Subject and institution in Ireland
- Dessislava Gadeva et Diana Tsirkova: Consequences of soviet totalitarism in Bulgaria

PROPAGANDA AND ITS PSYCHIC EFFECTIVENESS

In this round table we are trying to submit to metapsychological reflection the phenomenon of propaganda, especially war propaganda, as well as its post-Soviet version. One of the functions of this propaganda is to wall up, fill and saturate linguistic and semantic space, that is to say not to allow the existence of even a single hole through which truth can pass. Any attempt by the truth to break into this linguistic fortress of propaganda is doomed to failure. Within this round table we are invited to ask the following question: Why propaganda is so effective today? What is the source and the wellspring of its power?

Round Table Chairman and moderator: Olivier Douville with Chalva Maminashvili

- Olivier Douville: Opening of RT
- Roland Gori: Lies, fake news and propaganda (intervention by Zoom)
- Mimoza Dimitrova: Bulgarians under the censorship of the "Bulgarian name". Aspects of the impact of Russian propaganda in Bulgaria
- Chalva Maminashvili: Propaganda – language construction, or the symbolic against the actual reality

RACIALITY AND COLONIALISM: QUESTIONS FOR PSYCHOANALYSIS (2)

- Andréia Stenner: Towards a Brazilian decolonial psychoanalysis
- Cláudio Augusto Silva Gutierrez: Without samba it doesn't work: the challenges of a Brazilian psychoanalysis

2:00 PM

FOR A PSYCHOANALYSIS ATTUNED TO OUR TIME (1)

Psychoanalysis has less and less presence in the media, universities, and healthcare institutions. Analysts often attribute this loss of credibility to the dominance of scientism and the culture of instant gratification. While this may not be entirely untrue, we believe it is important to reflect on how we, too, bear some responsibility for the decline of our discipline. The participants in this roundtable will address these challenges in order to propose a psychoanalysis that can rethink itself, as it has always done, in tune with the times, without losing the essence of what it is.

Coordination: Stéphanie Colomb, Patrick De Neuter et Nicole Stryckman; Chair: Nicole Stryckman / Vice-Chair: Didier Lestarquy; Discussants: Jochem Willemsen, Martine Mergeay

- Nicole Stryckman: Introduction
- Patrick De Neuter: Teaching from a Survey and Questions Regarding Phallocentrism
- Emmanuèle Sandron:A Clinic of Gender Disorders.
- Stéphanie Colomb: The Clitoris and Female Pleasure: Beyond the Phallocentric Legacy
- Markos Zafiropoulos: Psychoanalysis Discredited by Its Familialist Ideals: Woman, Father, Oedipus

TREATMENT MODALITIES FOR CONTEMPORARY SYMPTOMS, BABIES, CHILDREN, AND ADOLESCENTS FROM HERE AND ELSEWHERE (2): CHILDREN

- Catherine Jousselme:. About the influence of social networks on fantasies and the unconscious.
- Leïla Guimaraes Lobo De Mendoça: Parental functions have been externalized: screens, objects anonymous
- Myriam Szejer: Psychoanalytic listening in perinatality and MAP (medically assisted procreation)
- Angelo Villa: Reflections on the proliferation of diagnoses for children and the paradox of segregation

WARS AND LOSSES (1)

We are confronted in today's world with several wars, some closer than others, but all undeniably affecting our society. The resulting psychological repercussions are numerous: exile, the reshaping of a threatened identity, amputated bodies, and family dislocations. These consequences force us to think more than ever about the knotting of the real with the imaginary and the symbolic.

Discussants and session chairs: Anahit Dasseux Ter Mesropian and Marthe Dubreuil

- Anahit Dassseux Ter Mesropian: Introduction
- Janine Altounian (Armenia): The erasure of places
- Franck de Montleau: Supporting subjects affected by the multiple losses caused by situation of war: what clinical frameworks and therapeutic approaches? Reflections based on several immersive experiences in areas of conflict
- Houchang Guilyardi (Iran): Wars and the dismemberment of the object
- Aline Husseini (Lebanon): Psychoanalytical practice in the face of incurable wound: Wars and the "Lebanese syndrome"

Screening of the 52-minute documentary Arménia(s) The time for artists, followed by a discussion with special guests Robert Guédiguian and Ariane Ascaride.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 14th

9:30 AM

FOR A PSYCHOANALYSIS ATTUNED TO OUR TIME (2)

Chair: Nicole Stryckman / Vice-Chair: Patrick De Neuter
Discussants: François Georges, Joel Birman

- Yorgos Dimitriadis: The Complexity of Dialogue Between Psychoanalysis, Neurosciences, and Genetics
- Didier Lestarquy: The Name-of-the-Father: A Return to the Sources for an Attempt to Redefine the Function
- Guénaël Visentini: Discrediting Psychoanalysis: Five Proposals for a Return Towards a Future

TREATMENT MODALITIES FOR CONTEMPORARY SYMPTOMS, BABIES, CHILDREN, AND ADOLESCENTS FROM HERE AND ELSEWHERE (3): ADOLESCENTS

Speakers: Didier Lauru et Dominique Tourrès-Landman,

- Ouriel Rosenblum: When the aftermath of adolescence revisits early relationship
- Anne Perret: The teenager, repository of parental subjective impasse
- Irina Kachelska-Zarkova: Adolescence in our time and the "age of adolescence"
- Marie Terral-Vidal avec Sandrine Deloche et Annabelle Sidarous: The polyphony of diagnosis in transference

WAR AND LOSS (2)

Discussants and session chairs: Anahit Dasseux Ter Mesropian and Marthe Dubreuil

- Joël Briman: War and politics in psychoanalysis
- Christian Laval: Neoliberalism, government and civil war

2:00 PM

SUBJECTIVE CONSEQUENCES OF DIGITAL TECHNOLOGY IN THE CONTEMPORARY CLINIC

For more than twenty years, digital technology has played an ever-increasing part in our lives. In addition to concrete changes, there are also those implied by the virtualization of our lives and our relationships, affecting both subjectivity and social bonds. Examining the relationship between psychoanalysis and the digital world means questioning the impact of these changes on the treatment itself.

- Martine Fourré: Anthropology of the effects of digital technology
- Olivier Duris: Generative AI and subjective emergence in day hospitals
- Quentin Dumoulin: Therapeutic machines

Conversation between:

- Gilles Lipovetsky: Individualism challenged by hypermodernity
- Louis Raffinot: The subject of the individual

TREATMENT MODALITIES FOR CONTEMPORARY SYMPTOMS, BABIES, CHILDREN, AND ADOLESCENTS FROM HERE AND ELSEWHERE (4): ADOLESCENTS

Speakers: Didier Lauru et Dominique Tourrès-Landman,

- Antoine Masson: The adolescent moment and the logic of interpretation
- Laurent Delhommeau: Institutional psychotherapy with adolescents
- Hoda Dagher: Challenges of analytic work with polytraumatized adolescents
- Dominique Tourrès-Landman: Self-destructive violence in adolescence

TRANSLATION

A bilingual or plurilingual analysand may speak one or more languages. When a subject speaks several languages, one is used to express what cannot be expressed in the other. Each symbolism has its own metaphors and its own specific relationship to culture. The role of the psychoanalyst is that of an interpreter of the language of the Other, looking more for the unconscious content than the meaning of the patient's words.

Discussant: Emmanuèle Sandron

- Jalil Bennani: One word for two languages
- Jean Pierre Cléro: False Windows in Analysis
- Rosalina Dotcheva: Translation as the "language of psychoanalysis".
- Si Mostafa Ettajani: From one language to another in the analytic cure
- Valentin Kalinov: Otherness, Translation and Truth: Ethical and Hermeneutical Dimensions of the Psychoanalytic Encounter with the Word
- Paola Mieli: Between languages

FROM THE PERSONAL TO THE POLITICAL: PSYCHOANALYSIS TAKES THE RISK OF WELCOMING

Beginning with historical places such as the Iraec and the "Maison verte", in Paris, we would like to re-examine the reference to Françoise Dolto as well as psychoanalysis in the practice of receiving and welcoming. The concepts of psychoanalysis, citizen-analysis, and framework seem to us essential concepts and tools for our clinic; they form an ethical, political, and practical braid that allows variation but requires that it be embodied in the "Here and now of welcoming."

We invited colleagues from various psychoanalytically oriented institutions throughout the world that constitute places of reception and welcome for children and parents. Colleagues from Belgium-Switzerland-England-Georgia-Greece will participate in this round table and make their contribution.

Organisers: Frederick Aubourg, Marie Chapelle, Patricia de Rouvray, Daniel Olivier, Patricia Trotobas

- Georgia, Marina Tarasashvili and Nanuka Maisashvili: The role of the Maison Verte in the Géorgian context
- Greece, Nikos Pavlatos: Against my better judgement: on countertransference at the outset of the cure
- England, Kristina Valendinova and Xavier Fourtou: Finding one's voice at "Bubble and speak"
- Switzerland, Jacqueline Bonvin, Marie Leuba and José Martinez: Open house: drafts in the consulting room
- Belgium, Josette Charles and Cinzia d'Angelis: Receiving those who come and become as they pass through

HOW TO REFLECT ON THE CLINIC TO COME?

The stakes are to question the amazing continuity of structure (and structures), with regard to the discontinuity of an overwhelming clinical phenomenology, in a changing world which is transformed by techno-science and affected to its core by the disastrous consequences of war, as well as of economic and ecological upheavals.

Coordination: André Michels

- Ivan Dulov: Some remarks on the traversing of the phantasm
- Claude-Noëlle Pickmann: Let's not be afraid of being Freudian, still today
- Pierre Marie: What future for Freudian Psychoanalysis?
- André Michels: T*o return to Freudian Metapsychology*

PSYCHOANALYSIS AND THE POLITICS OF IMMIGRATION AND EXILE

Throughout the world, the importance of immigration raises political and moral questions. It's no longer just a matter of talking about a metapsychology of exile, a fascination with the "traumatic" or a culturalist approach to this population upheaval, but for clinicians, aware of the political dimension of these new forms of migration, to think about situations of segregation or relegation, the way in which institutional clinical devices (including those of the singular encounter) are traversed by the uncertainties, and sometimes the routs, of the ideological and the political.

Round table coordinated and moderated by Olivier Douville

- Didier Leschi: Immigration to Europe: new data, new challenges
- Bertrand Piret: Clinical issues in interpreting
- Amira Yahiaoui: Caring for people in administrative detention centers: practical, ethical and political issues
- Davide Giannica: Return migration, return from exile, remigration
- Olivier Douville: Scope and limits of the ethnological frame of reference, for a clinical anthropology

2:00 PM

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE: TECHNICAL INNOVATION OR ANTHROPOLOGICAL REVOLUTION?

Is artificial intelligence a new figure of Prometheus, stealing sacred human intelligence and passing it on to robots, or is it simply a technical innovation that will increase human capacity to master the universe? The answer lies in the impact of artificial intelligence not only on society, but also on subjectivity.

- Ursula Hommel Renard: AI and the death drive
- Serge Tisseron: How AI is transforming us
- Patrick Landman: AI and Psychiatry

ISSUES OF TRAINING AND TRANSMISSION FOR PSYCHOANALYSIS TODAY

This round table will address the issues of psychoanalytic training and transmission, considering current challenges in different countries and contexts, in particular the relationship between psychoanalysis and the university, psychoanalysis and the medical sciences, the digital environment, the "elitisation" of psychoanalysis, and the various debates around more accessible and popular modes of training.

Round table coordinated by Luiz Paulo Martins and moderated by Patrick De Neuter

- Pedro Cattapan: Problems posed by the creation of university psychoanalytic training programs in Brazil
- Vannina Micheli-Rechtman: Do the Detractors of psychoanalysis have a future?
- Luiz Paulo Martins: On the continuity of psychoanalysis
